INTRODUCING zeeblio

Zeeblio has taken what Tripod's previous builder was capable of and upgraded it significantly. Tripod has refined the drag and drop capabilities, making the builder more user-friendly, while also adding a handful of useful add-ons that help with site layout as well as media integration from Flickr, Photobucket, Picasa, and Vimeo.

The Marvelous Media Manager

One of Zeeblio's most distinguishing factors is its completely redesigned Media Manager. With the manager, Tripod members can upload images, videos, documents, flash, and audio files as well as import pictures from their Flickr accounts. They can categorize their media into separate folders and even open their images up into an editor to make some changes before they drop it on their page. The manager and all of its functions is contained within the builder and can be accessed quickly from the Media tab, which will show a quick view of all the files within the manager.

It's Oh-So-Easy

Don't know code? No problem. Zeeblio's add-ons are created with webmasters in mind so that you can easily drag and drop your text, Twitter feed, video, or anything else to your desired location. Just follow the guides that show you where you're placing your add-on. Plus, with the wizard walking you through the beginning of your site building experience and helpful knowledgebase articles to help you along the way, figuring out how to build a site from scratch has never been easier.

You're Unique - Show It

While all of Zeeblio's templates are professionally designed to give you a great looking site, Tripod understands that you may want to express yourself and show your unique taste. With simple customization, templates can be altered to have slight color changes or completely revamped - you decide. Again, not knowing code is not an issue. You can view the customization of the template in basic properties view so all you have to do is go in and change background images or colors. If you do know some CSS, switch to source view for more in depth access.

What's In A Name?

Zeeblio may not sound like it means much of anything, but it was born out of creative brainstorming and it represents just that. Zeeblio was made for website builders of all skill levels to be able to easily bring their creative thoughts and ideas to life. Sure, the name Zeeblio may have been a fun spark that we ran with - but isn't that how all great ideas start?
